

Stepping

through the rhetoric

“ I don't have to remind my customers that things have gotten bad in the airline industry; they live it - along with me - daily. I know they are as tired of hearing me say 'I'm sorry' as I am. It's our loyal customers who keep this airline flying, along with 80,000 American Airlines employees who wouldn't take bankruptcy for an answer.

On April 18th, 874 AA executives will take huge bonuses all for themselves justifying them all the way to the bank.

What happened to investing in good service and the people who make it happen? I wish I knew. In the meantime, these boots may help wade through some of the corporate rhetoric coming our way.”

This anonymous flight attendant represents the face of American Airlines, working for less pay and benefits; with the least amount of amenities to offer her on board guests in her career. On April 18th, 874 American Airlines executives will be rewarded for this feat.

That's why her co-workers in 16 airports across America will join her on April 17th in a nationwide protest from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. local time.

This message is brought to you by the union representing the concerned flight attendants of American Airlines, including more than 2,000 furloughed colleagues
